moles begin to come forth from their winarsenic. Make a hole with a finger in the runways, drop in a lump of the dough about the size of a marble, and then cover light. After the first rain go over the field again and deposit in all freshly-made roads. I once concluded to plant a piece of sandy bottom land in sweet potatoes, but as it was much infested by moles my success mainly depended on first exterminating them. A few doses of arsenic given in the way described brought about the desired result, and it was a very rare circumstance to see the track of a mole in this particular piece of ground during the entire season.

An Old Superstition.

Among the horrible superstitions which still exist in some parts of the world, that of the vampire is one of the worst. A recent lawsuit in Germany has shown that this weird belief still exists, notwith standing the boasted enlightenment of this nineteenth century.

On the 5th of February, 1870, there died at Kantzyno, a village in Western Prussia, of consumption, a respectable gentleman named Francis Von Poblocki, sixty-three years of age. A few days after his funeral his eldest son, Auton, was taken sick and died on the 18th of the same month. According to the physician, his disease was what is known as a "galloping consumption." Almost at the same time this man's wife and a young daughter were taken sick; a second son and a brother-inlaw felt very unwell, and all these persons complained of feeling indescribable anxiety and oppression.

The superstitions notion was now adopted by the family, that the dead father was a so-called vampire, and that they must all continues to live in the grave, rising therefrom by night to suck the precious life-blood from living persons, especially its own relatives, and thus to nourish itself and prevent the usual decay. The per sons attacked, it is said, sometimes feel themselves in a dream caught by the neck and almost strangled; or unable to keep off the fearful visitant who lies on their breast, they decline very rapidly, and after death become themselves vampires, and so on without end, until by some forcible measures, the fearful terror is dispelled.

cording to this superstition, which prevails in Poland and Western Prussia, the ability to become a vanepire is given with the so-called Fortunatus' cap. which in all ages and among all people has been regarded as an emblem of prosperity. Such vampire candidates are said to be somewhat dictatorial and avaricious. The principal sign, it is believed, is to be found in the corpse. The face retains its color; the blood flows freely; the stiffness and offensiveness of dead bodies are entirely absent, as though the person were in a trance.

There are various methods adopted by these superstitious people for destroying the vampire; some mild, others more se vere. One is to turn the dead body in the coffin with the face downwards. Another is to drive a wooden stake through the breast, and further, to cut off the head and lay it, face downwards, between the legs, While the body is thus horribly treated, the people declare that grouns are heard and wild laughter from the mouth of the vampire. In some cases the dead body is burned to ashes,

After Auton Von Poblocki's death, and his mother and sister were taken sick, the family determined to resort to the severest measures of relief, the execution of which devolved on the second son, Joseph, who was now the head of the family. The head of the dead brother was cut off and laid between his feet, as already described. The same operation was to be performed on the father on the night before the son's funeral. Joseph Von Poblockie with this view, went the day be-fore to the grave-digger of the place, and offered him a round sum of money, if he would dig the grave for his brother so near to the father's, that they could, without much trouble, break through the sepa rating earth and open the coffic of the supposed vampire. The grave-digger consented to do this, but first consulted the pastor of the village church. The worthy clergyman forbade his taking any part in such a desecration and ordered him to dig the grave as usual. He also set a watch on the night before the funeral. The watchman was, however, careless, and the men were not disturbed until they had accomplished their purpose. Joseph and his assistants were tried for their act of desecration, and were found guilty by the distriet court. This sentence was reversed by the Court of Appeals, but the verdict was set aside by the Superior Court, and the case sent back to be tried again by the triburnal of the district. The trial was protracted through two years, but all the parties were finally acquitted, on the insufficient ground that they meant no wrong. If we now ask for the origin of this strange and horrible superstition, we shall probably find it in the ancient doctrine that the souls of the dead pass into the bodies of other animals-a doctrine still held by the Hindoos, There is a bat in South America which sometimes sucks the blood of other animals, and if this species once existed in Europe, it may have given rise be offered. to the belief that the dead sometimes rise from their graves and nourish themselves -The following process is said to be a on the blood of the living. The wonder is sure way to prevent oil lamps from smok-, that the superstition should still maintain

DON'T TAMPER WITH A COUGH.-Perhaps in the whole category of diseases to which hu-man, y is susceptible, the cough is most neglected in its early stage. A simple cough is generally regarded as a temporary afflictionunpleasant and nothing more, but to those who have paid dearly for experience, it is the signal for attack for the most fearful of all diseases—tonsumption. A cough will lead to consumption—if not checked—so sure as the rivulet leads to the river, yet it is an easy enemy to thwart, if met by the proper remedy. Allen's Long Balsam is the great cough remsertspoonful chopped parsely and thyme edy of the age, and has carned its reputation

The demand increased, and immense quantities were sold, at a merely nominal price. Its merit is told in the fact that "in two years over SIX MILLIONS of bottles have been sold:" and still the demand increases. Surely such a man should be ranked among the benefactors of the human race.

"Housekeeper" of Health.

The liver being the great depurating or blood cleansing organ of the system—set this great "housekeeper of our health" at work, and the foul corruptions which gender in the blood, and rot out, as it were, the machinery of life, are gradually expelled from the system. For this purpose Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Dis-covery with very small daily doses of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are preeminently the articles needed. They cure every kind of humor from the worst scrofula to the common pimple, blotch or eruption, Great cating ulcers kindly heal under their mighty curative influence. Virulent blood poisons that furk in the system are by them robbed of their terrors, and by their persevering and somewhat protracted use the most tainted systems may be completely renovated and built up anew. Enlarged glands, tumors and swellings dwindle away and disappear under the influence of these great resolvents.

DOCTORS COULDN'T HELP HIM. MEIGSVILLE, Morgan Co., O., Mar. 24, 1872.

Dear Dr. PIERCE: When I was 12 or 15 years of age I took what is called King's Evil, and by constant doctoring it would heal in one place and break out in another. It also broke out in my left ear. I first found your name in the Christian Advocate, and sent 10 miles for the first bota so-called vampire, and that they must all the, which did me more good than all other die if help were not at once obtained. A vampire is supposed to be a body which doctored with five doctors, and not one of

> It is now generally admitted by honest physicians, that when once the consumption is fairly fastened upon the lungs, no human power can save the patient from death. They also say that about fifty percent, of those who die from this disease can trace the cause to a neglected cough or cold, which might have been cured by a small bottle of Liquid Opo-deldoc, or what is the same thing, Johnson's Anodyne Liniment.

ALLEN'S LING BALSAM.

This Great Medicine was First Offered For Sale Ten Years Ago.

Its good qualities were soon made known at home, and very soon its fame was noised far and near; now it is sold in nearly every drug store in the United States. No similar medicine stands higher with the people. It is well known on the Pacine coast, and even from Australia large orders are received for it. And throughout Canada it is well and favorably known, and sold everywhere.

Ministers and Public Speakers,

Who are so often afflicted with throat diseases, will find a sure remedy in this Balsam. Lozenges and Wafers sometimes give relief, but this Balsam, taken a few times, will insure a permanent cure.

Will all those afflicted with Conglis or Consumption give this Balsam a fair trial? They will be pleased with the result, and confess that the SURE REMEDY IS FOUND AT LAST.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost dails sked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BIT TERS?" Our answer is, that they remov. the cause of disease, and the patient re-covers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the listory of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilions

The properties of Dr. Walker's Vinegar Bitters are Aperient, Diaphoretic. Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious,
